ADESTA EXPANDS WITH NEW OFFICE OPENING IN NORTHERN VIRGINIA

A new office near our nation's capital will allow Adesta to further lend their proven experience to federal government initiatives.

OMAHA, Neb. (September 8, 2008) – Adesta, LLC, a systems integrator and project management company for communication networks and electronic security systems, today announced they have established a new office location in Northern Virginia to support the communications and security needs of the federal government and surrounding area. The new office located in Springfield Virginia will be known as the National Capital Region (NCR) and represents Adesta's twelfth regional office in the United States. Adesta has worked with several federal, state and local government agencies in helping to protect our nation's critical assets for over fifteen years, while specializing in the design and implementation of modern communications networks, infrastructure and world class electronic and physical security solutions for public and private customers.

"The opening of an office in the area of our nation's capital is representative of our commitment to serving the communication and security needs of our clients and our government now and in the future," said Bob Sommerfeld, President of Adesta. "We intend for this new regional activity to execute projects across the entire spectrum of our core capabilities of telecommunications, electronic security and broadband networks."

The office is located at 7432 Alban Station Boulevard, Suite B226, Springfield, VA 22150, and the phone number is 703-440-1333.
